The WTSDA strongly recommends that students testing for black belt ranks participate in community support activities. Volunteering to help others shows understanding and compassion, and also provides added learning and leadership skills. A student's participation record can be used as an added tool to determine advanced promotion and for qualifying for leadership assignments.

Your instructor and the WTSDA can provide suggestions for community involvement or you may choose an activity of your liking. Any actions that help another person, the community, or charitable organizations are examples of community involvement.
